

CIVIL MEDIA

Cultures - Participation - Dialogue Salzburg, 4 - 6 Dec. 08

Civilmedia 08:

The Civilmedia 08 will be a landmark at the end of the “European Year of Intercultural Dialogue 2008”.

In bringing together international and national alternative media practitioners, researchers, policy makers, activists, and community development workers, we will review the importance of community media and Web 2.0 for intercultural dialogue in Europe.

What meaning, impact and challenges do arise by participatory media production in respect to intercultural dialogue? Which models for future action can we develop? These will be the main issues addressed during the Civilmedia 08.

Additionally, best practice projects as e.g. radiodialoge.at will be presented and discussed.

Cultures - Participation - Dialogue

Non-commercial community radios are among the first players in electronic media participation. They have opened a new channel of communication for marginalized people and groups. Migrants have been important participants from the beginning.

Citizen Journalism and user generated content at community radio stations Europe-wide and, in recent years, participatory Web 2.0 tools - weblogs, wikis, podcasting, online video - are important opportunities to make excluded voices heard.

The UnConference

The UnConference provides an open space for media activists, scholars, politicians, and the interested public. Everybody is encouraged to participate actively.

Various forms of presentations, workshops, discussions etc. will allow a large vision on the field of participatory media and also permit that each contributor finds his or her specific place in the programme.

Info & Registration

If you want to take part at the UnConference, please register at the wiki space at <http://civilmedia.eu> and propose your workshop or presentation on-line. Have a frequent look at the wiki for an overview on what is going to happen!

There is no conference fee. Concerning accommodation and if you need support for travel costs, please refer to the organisers.

Venue: Jugendgästehaus Nonntal,
